ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

First and foremost, I give thanks and glory to the Almighty God for His abundant blessings and mercies in my life and throughout my doctoral studies. This academic journey was made possible through the support of many individuals. For those I may not have mentioned I will definitely find a chance to extend my appreciation.

To my supervisors Profs. Joske Bunders, Bart Criel, Jeffrey Lazarus and Dr. Carolien Aantjes: I am grateful to have you in my team of academic advisors and your critical feedback helped improve my thesis and scholarly writing immensely. Joske you always had a creative solution to the “difficult” situations and celebrated with great joy the successes of the PhD. Bart and Jeffrey you showed great enthusiasm in my thesis topic and ensured I was up to speed with the latest information in my field of study. Carolien you were more than a supervisor. Through your mentorship, I learnt a lot and admire your friendly and professional work ethos. I am forever grateful for your exceptional support, which saw me through the high and low moments of my PhD. I will remember fondly our PhD meetings at your home and special moments shared with Noa and Mark.

I thank the thesis committee chaired by Prof. Jacqueline Broerse, Prof. Charles Agyemang, Prof. Florian Neuhann, Dr. Sylvia Alemany and Dr. Marjolien Dieleman for dedicating your time to evaluate this thesis.

I appreciate the funding support from the Erasmus Mundus Transglobal Health programme. Durwin Lynch thanks for being the best programme manager. Prof. Núria Casamitjana and Isa Bolgert I appreciate your support in coordinating my mobility to ITM-Antwerp and ISGlobal-Barcelona.

To Prof. Tim Quinlan and Mr. Murphy Kajumi, both from the Health Economics and HIV/AIDS Research Division, University of KwaZulu-Natal. Thank you for accepting to collaborate in this study and for your contribution as co-authors. I am grateful to the Catholic Health Commission, Blantyre Archdiocese in particular Madam Mary Ganiza for linking us with the CHBC programmes in Phalombe. Jos Dusseljee thanks for connecting us with the programmes in Malawi. Mr. Ketwin Kondowe and Mr. Joseph Zulu, your support and that of the Phalombe District Health Office was fundamental in the implementation of this research and I appreciate your contribution as co-authors. Thanks to Matron Sabina Sessay, Mr. Harrison Phiri, Madam Beatrice Majawa, Father Vincent Maganja for your support and warm hospitality during our stay in Phalombe. Mr. Godfrey Fallow, Madam Flonny Chisale, Mr. Innocent Namathamanga, Madam Selina Semani, Mr. Lazarus Mangani, Mr. Francisco Peter, Mr. James Michere, Mr. Peter Nambiri and Mr. Chingwalu; I thank you for the support you and the CBO/FBO volunteers accorded the research team and made the patients’ study visits possible. Keep doing the great job and making a difference in the lives of the patients and families in your CHBC programmes. Thanks to the patients involved in this study for opening up your homes and enlightening us with your experiences.

Special thanks to Joe Chomanika, Vanessa Kumwenda, and Dadirai Khambadza. You were the best team to work with. Dadirai I am forever grateful for ensuring the field activities ran smoothly and holding the fort while I was back in Amsterdam. Elvis Moyo, I am forever indebted to you for being extraordinarily supportive during my stay in Malawi. Thanks to you and your family, Malawi will always be my second home.

I wish to express my deepest gratitude to friends and colleagues who supported me during the time of my studies. To my awesome friends and sisters, Drs. Gertrude Nsorma and Ibukun Abejirinde. You were always there for me when I needed a friend to soak up my emotions and inspire me. Evelyn Waweru and Maureen Njue, I count myself double lucky to have my friends and former colleagues join me in the same programme. To my friend Dr. Symon Kariuki, thank you for supporting me prior to and during the PhD, and for your statistical guidance. To Drs. Seth Inzaule, Mary Mwangome, and Peter Mugo thanks for helping out with the technical bits of the proposal. Tony Iha thank you for designing the survey database. Dr. George Okello, Metrine Saisi, Scholarstica Zakayo, Dr. Dorothy Oluoch, Stephen Mulupi, Dr. Mary Nyikuri, Irene Jao, and Nancy Mwangome I appreciate your friendship and constant encouragement. To Profs. Sassy Molyneux and Caroline Jones; you were great mentors and offered me the best research training while at KEMRI/WTRP.

To colleagues at the Athena Institute, Vrije Universiteit Amsterdam; Dr. Ikenna Ebuenyi, Dr. Bain Luchuo, Dr. Roselyter Rianga, Dr. Mukesh Hamal, Lana Meiqari and Dr. Ona Ilozumba thanks for your friendship and extending a hand when I needed help. Carolien Deen and Priya Somar I appreciate your contribution to the project during your internship. Thanks to Astrid Kojimaans and Athena secretariat for your administrative support. Divya Nadkarni thanks for the editorial services. At the Institute of Tropical Medicine – Antwerp, I wish to thank Nandini Sarkar, Jeroen de Man, Tom Smekens and colleagues at the Department of Public Health who were supportive during my TGH mobility.

To Prof. Amina Abubakar, I am grateful for your mentorship and career advice during the time of my studies. I am very fortunate to have joined the team you lead at the Institute for Human Development (IHD), at the Aga Khan University - Nairobi. Prof. Kofi Marfo, thank you for offering me the Post-Doctoral position and creating a conducive work environment to ensure I complete my studies. To Margaret Kabue and the rest of the IHD family, it has been a great pleasure working with you.

To my dad Bernard Angwenyi, mum Martha Angwenyi and mum Alice Anyango; your love, prayers, and constant encouragement were a great source of motivation and I hope to have made you proud parents! To my husband Allan Ochieng' Omondi, you always believed in me and constantly encouraged me to aim higher. Thanks for your abundant love, friendship and being part of this journey with me. To my son Liam Moyo Ochieng'; though you are a few months old, your love and presence in my life has been my greatest source of inspiration. Thanks to my brothers, sisters, nephews and nieces; Gertrude, Timothy, Antony, Immaculate, Kizzy, Alice, Gilbert, Shan, Millah, Lemwel, Manuel, Naya, Jai, Karla, and Amara. Words cannot express how grateful and lucky I am to have each one of you in my life.
