1 Introduction 1
  1.1 An illustrative example of feasibility assessment 1
  1.2 Research questions 4
  1.3 Research approach 5
  1.4 Main contribution 7
  1.5 Outline 8
  1.6 List of publications 8

I Theory meets practice: Inspiration and foundation of research 11

2 Assessing feasibility of innovative value constellations 13
  2.1 Understanding the concept of feasible constellations 14
      2.1.1 Technology-driven feasibility assessment 16
      2.1.2 Business-driven feasibility assessment 18
  2.2 Feasibility assessment through business-ICT alignment 20
      2.2.1 Alignment in strategic management research 22
      2.2.2 Alignment in requirements engineering 25
      2.2.3 Architecture reference models to support alignment 25
      2.2.4 Implications for further research 27
  2.3 Introduction to real-world case studies 28
      2.3.1 Balancing electricity consumption and supply 28
III OPAL in practice: Two real-world case studies

5 Feasibility assessment in the energy sector: The Distributed Balancing Services

5.1 Innovative services in the energy sector
5.1.1 Domain background: Electricity management
5.1.2 Distributed electricity management
5.1.3 Distributed Balancing Service

5.2 Feasibility assessment using OPAL
5.2.1 Phase I: Understanding the value constellation
5.2.2 Phase II: Conceptualization of the value constellation
5.2.3 Phase III: Analysis of the value constellation
5.2.4 Phase IV: Evaluation and implication of analysis

5.3 Discussion
5.3.1 Reflections on the case
5.3.2 Reflections on the OPAL method

6 Feasibility assessment for electronic customs: The Secure Trade Lane initiative

6.1 Innovative services in public administration
6.1.1 Domain background: Customs of cross-border trade
6.1.2 The Secure Trade Lane initiative
6.1.3 Innovative services of Secure Trade Lane

6.2 Feasibility assessment using OPAL
6.2.1 Phase I: Understanding the value constellation
6.2.2 Phase II: Conceptualization of the value constellation
6.2.3 Phase III: Analysis of the value constellation
6.2.4 Phase IV: Evaluation and implication of analysis

6.3 Discussion
6.3.1 Reflections on the case
6.3.2 Reflections on the OPAL method
7 Conclusion

7.1 Reflection on research questions ........................................ 185
7.2 Reflections on contribution .................................................. 189
7.3 Reflections on further research ............................................. 192
