In pursuit of human flourishing
Giordano, Margaret Anne

2024

DOI (link to publisher)
10.5463/thesis.634

document version
Publisher's PDF, also known as Version of record

Link to publication in VU Research Portal

citation for published version (APA)

General rights
Copyright and moral rights for the publications made accessible in the public portal are retained by the authors and/or other copyright owners and it is a condition of accessing publications that users recognise and abide by the legal requirements associated with these rights.

- Users may download and print one copy of any publication from the public portal for the purpose of private study or research.
- You may not further distribute the material or use it for any profit-making activity or commercial gain
- You may freely distribute the URL identifying the publication in the public portal

Take down policy
If you believe that this document breaches copyright please contact us providing details, and we will remove access to the work immediately and investigate your claim.

E-mail address:
vuresearchportal.ub@vu.nl

Download date: 23. Aug. 2024
Table of Contents

Abbreviations ........................................................................................................................................... vi

Chapter 1: Introduction ................................................................................................................................... 1
A. Introduction to the problem ...................................................................................................................................... 1
B. A theological backstory, and a springboard forward .............................................................................................. 1
C. Philosophical methodology ........................................................................................................................................ 6
D. An assisted approach to the problem: discourse with Thomas Aquinas ..................................................................... 10
E. How we get there: an Aristo-Proclean reading of Thomas Aquinas ............................................................................ 19
F. Augustine: the sine qua non of Thomas’s Christian philosophy ................................................................................. 28
G. The guiding thread of the inquiry: intelligibility .................................................................................................... 39
H. The ductus: a spiritual exercise in human flourishing ............................................................................................... 45

Chapter 2: The foundation of the question: the framing of a Thomistic account of human nature and activity ........................................................................................................................................................................ 50
A. Aristotle’s ‘horizontal’ account of human activity as the operation of rational self-movers ........................................... 51
B. Thomas’s appropriation of Aristotle on human nature: human beings as imago Dei .................................................. 65
C. Proclus’s ‘vertical’ account of human existence as participation in a cosmic hierarchy .................................................. 74
D. Thomas’s appropriation of Neoplatonism: beings in a sacred universe ................................................................. 85
E. Thomas’s synthesis of horizontal and vertical accounts of reality: the coworking of nature and grace ............................ 98

Chapter 3: The problem, part one: What happens when our kind of being is thwarted? ........................................... 104
A. Violence through an Aristotelian lens: the strange case of the inert agent ................................................................. 106
B. Thomas’s commentary upon and appropriation of Aristotle’s account of violence ...................................................... 113
C. Violence through a Proclean lens: the terrible case of estrangement ........................................................................... 116
D. Thomas’s commentary upon and appropriation of Proclus’s account of violence ..................................................... 125
E. Thomas’s account of violence ........................................................................................................................................ 128
   E1. A brief survey of violentia in Aquinas .................................................................................................................... 129
   E2. Violence as privation of cause/defective action: the ‘bite of nothingness’ ............................................................... 132
   E3. Violence against the hierarchy: the private good ................................................................................................... 141
   E4. Example: a brief study of malice, as seen in Thomas’s commentary upon Psalm 51 .............................................. 144
F. Conclusion ................................................................................................................................................................. 146

Interstice: A ‘novel’ approach to human flourishing ................................................................................................. 149

Chapter 4: A first response to violence: an account of human nature flourishing .................................................... 155
A. Aristotle: Contra-violence as the community of friendship with ‘other selves’ ........................................................... 158
B. Proclus: Contra-violence as the community of similitude and the well-daimoned life .................................................. 161
C. Aquinas: Contra-violence as the human art of second-person relations ...................................................................... 165
   C1. Human nature’s innate capability for growth ........................................................................................................... 166
   C2. The Holy Spirit’s causality: the operative collaboration of divine and created agents .............................................. 169
   C3. Joint attention: human activity toward other humans as a shared stance with the Chapter 5: The problem, part 2: what happens when we don’t?

A. Aristotle: ἀκρασία/incontinence ......................................................... 198
B. Proclus: ‘falling away’ from the good ............................................ 206
C. Aquinas ......................................................................................... 210
   C1. Thomas’s appropriation of the problem of ‘falling away’ ....... 211
   C3. Theological examples: Thomas’s use of ‘falling away’ in his commentary upon the psalms, and the possibility of restoration with the good ....... 221
D. Conclusion: an inventory of natural contra-violent orientations ... 192

Chapter 6: A second response to violence: the human art of gratitude .......................................................... 228

A. The theme of gratitude as it appears in Aristotle ........................................ 234
B. The theme of gratitude as it appears in Proclus ........................................ 238
C. The theme of gratitude as treated in Aquinas ....................................... 245
   C1. Thomas’s general account of gratitude (ST 2–2, Q. 106).............. 247
   C2. Concrete contexts of gratitude, part 1: Gratitude toward God
       (with special reference to selections from Thomas’s treatise on religion, found in ST 2–2, QQ. 81-91) ......................... 251
   C3. Concrete contexts of gratitude, part 2: the ‘sacred’ activities of clarificatio and convenientia ........................................ 258
D. Conclusion: An inventory of interventions of gratitude ....................... 274

Chapter 7: Conclusion: Intelligibility ‘other-wise,’ the ‘beautiful risk’ .... 277

A. Overview of the findings: the creation of a contra-violent inventory ........ 277
B. The ductus as an evolving response to critique and difficulty .......... 282
C. Carrying the thesis forward ....................................................... 292
D. Final words: in praise of particularity, and the ‘beautiful risk’ .......... 299

Appendix: The reception of Augustinian Neoplatonism in the Christian West ........ 301

Bibliography ................................................................................... 306

Summary ......................................................................................... 323

http://doi.org/10.5463/thesis.634