This book is about the influence of older people who live in residential care homes on collective issues that affect their life in the institutional context.

It explores how this influence takes place and how it can be developed in a participative way that is valuable to all who live and work in residential care homes.