

VU Research Portal

How to Win Elections: An Evolved Psychological Model of Context, Facial Cues, and Message Predicts Leadership Emergence

Spisak, B.R.

2012

document version

Publisher's PDF, also known as Version of record

Link to publication in VU Research Portal

citation for published version (APA)

Spisak, B. R. (2012). How to Win Elections: An Evolved Psychological Model of Context, Facial Cues, and Message Predicts Leadership Emergence.

General rights

Copyright and moral rights for the publications made accessible in the public portal are retained by the authors and/or other copyright owners and it is a condition of accessing publications that users recognise and abide by the legal requirements associated with these rights.

- Users may download and print one copy of any publication from the public portal for the purpose of private study or research.
- You may not further distribute the material or use it for any profit-making activity or commercial gain
- You may freely distribute the URL identifying the publication in the public portal ?

Take down policy

If you believe that this document breaches copyright please contact us providing details, and we will remove access to the work immediately and investigate your claim.

E-mail address:

vuresearchportal.ub@vu.nl

Appendix

War

Your country of Taminia is at war with the neighbouring country of Robania. It has been an aggressive, costly and competitive war with no side willing to concede. Recently, Robania has increased their forces and intensified their bombing raids. This has made everyone exceptionally concerned for their safety. You and your fellow citizens are determined to establish dominance over Robania in order to protect the lands, resources and people of Taminia. Currently, your country is in the middle of a presidential election. Vote for a face in each pairing you think looks most like the leader in a war-time situation.

Peace - Between

Your country of Taminia has a longstanding and reciprocal relationship with the neighbouring country of Rokland. This alliance, however, has become strained due to conflicting policies of your respective governments. Both sides are threatening to restrict trade and close the borders. Also, it has been rumoured that military forces will be mobilized within the next six months. If that happens, war is almost certain. From the perspective of most Taminians, physical conflict is something that should be avoided at all cost. Instead, the people want to restore cooperation with Rokland through non-violent resolution that emphasises creativity and understanding. Currently, your country is in the middle of a presidential election. Vote for a face in each pairing you think looks most like the leader to ensure peace and encourage connectivity between groups.