CHAPTER 2. FROM INSTITUTIONAL REPRESENTATION TOWARDS INDIVIDUAL ACTIVATION (1974-1990)

1. Pinpointing the problems
   1.1. Counterproductive government policy
   1.2. Deficiencies of civil society

2. Directions for improvement
   2.1. Further decentralization
   2.2. Representation and harmonization

3. The government’s reaction
   3.1. First decisions

4. New policy lines: towards individual activation
   4.1. Participation: civil society as supportive structure
   4.2. Participation: revaluation of the volunteer
   4.3. Individual activation: towards a ‘caring society’

5. Summarizing overview of social policy themes

PART II
THE SALVATION ARMY’S IDENTITY PROCESS (1887-1990)

CHAPTER 3. THE SALVATION ARMY AND THE SOCIAL POLICY SYSTEM

1. The Salvation Army’s two-fold mission
   1.1. Religious propagation
   1.2. Social care
   1.3. The Salvation Army in the Netherlands
   1.4. Two branches of the same tree?

2. Reciprocity and instrumentalism (1887-1940)
   2.1. Initial income and expenditure
   2.2. Probation services of the Salvation Army until 1945

   3.1. The Army’s attitude of supplementarity
3.2. Organizational expansion and sources of income 106
3.3. Habituation 108

4. Probation work of the Salvation Army (1945-1980) 111
5. A hint of interdependency? 114

CHAPTER 4. THE ‘CHRONIC PROBLEM’ OF LEGAL INCORPORATION 119
1. The roots of the Army’s chronic problem 119
   1.1. Legal incorporation in the Netherlands 119
   1.2. The Army’s structure of command 121
   1.3. Codification of the Salvation Army’s two-fold mission 122
   1.4. Legal status in trying times: World War II 124
   1.5. A church-foundation 128

2. The ‘secular robe’ in practice 130
   2.1. A social service organization 130
   2.2. The Army as a test case for the government 133
   2.3. The chameleonic Salvation Army 136

3. The Army’s process of legal identity (1958 - 1976) 141

CHAPTER 5. PROFESSIONALIZATION OF THE SALVATION ARMY 147
1. Professionalization boosted 147
2. Professionalization debated 149
   3.1. The officer: personification of the Salvation Army’s identity 153
   3.2. Preparing for the (spiritual) battle 154

4. Professionalization of the probation work field (1887-1980) 156
   4.1. Initial professionalization (1910-1945) 156
   4.2. Postwar professionalization (1945-1970) 157

5. Effects of professionalization on the Army’s identity 160
   5.1. Professional depillarization 160
   5.2. An exodus of the volunteers 161
   5.3. Social casework: “a Trojan horse” 163
PART III
A DYNAMIC COURTSHIP

CHAPTER 7. DYNAMICS OF IDENTITY
1. The social policy system and identity 239
2. The Salvation Army’s process of identity 243
3. Concluding remarks 247

IN RETROSPECT: BEYOND THE REORGANIZATION 251
1. Professionalization of the Army as social service provider 251
   1.1. Centralization and de-compartmentalization (1990-1995) 252
   1.2. Decentralization and scaling-up (1995-2005) 254
   1.3. Competing in a free market: identity (2005-2012) 255
2. The Salvation Army’s faith community 258
3. The government: lessons learned? 261
4. A world to win, or to lose? 265

Appendix A – List of legislation with regard to the Dutch welfare state 273
Appendix B – List of Territorial Commanders of the Salvation Army in the Netherlands 275
Appendix C – Salvation Army’s organizational charts since 1990 277
Bibliography 279
Summary in English 289
Summary in Dutch 305
Curriculum Vitae 327