About the author

Curriculum Vitae

Roy Elbers was born in 1977 and grew up in Maashees, the Netherlands. He attended the school for higher general secondary education at the Scholengemeenschap Jerusalem in Venray. After his graduation in 1994 he studied physiotherapy at the Hogeschool van Arnhem and Nijmegen. During his clinical work as a physiotherapist Roy developed a special interest in neurorehabilitation. He followed a master programme at the Vrije Universiteit Brussel (2003–2004) and obtained his degree in Neurological Rehabilitation magna cum laude.

In 2007, Roy started working as a lecturer in physiotherapy at the Hogeschool Leiden and combined his work with a study in clinical epidemiology at the Universiteit van Amsterdam. In 2009 he obtained his Master of Science degree in Evidence Based Practice and started his PhD research at the Vrije Universiteit van Amsterdam. Alongside his PhD research Roy kept working as a lecturer in physiotherapy, worked for Cochrane Netherlands and since 2012 as an assistant professor at the Universiteit van Amsterdam.
