This thesis focuses on two areas: empirical volatility modeling and empirical macro finance, which are sub-areas of empirical finance. Three chapters are collated, each focusing on a particular aspect of empirical finance: (1) a new semiparametric volatility model for stock returns; (2) volatility spillovers in euro-area financial markets; (3) global macroeconomic nowcasting and multi-asset performance.