

Table of Contents

Introduction	17
General relevance and goal of this study	18
Scientific leads and goals	19
Research questions and central concepts	20
Key players in this study: the European Union, European citizens, European media	24
Research design and methodological requirements	27
Theoretical orientation	31
Outline of the dissertation	31
PART ONE MARKING THE TERRAIN	33
Chapter 1 Exploring the boundaries of Europe and the European Union	35
Introduction	35
1.1 Europe and the EU: cultural and geographical settings	35
1.2 Sixty years of European integration and public involvement, a brief overview	37
1.3 The EU: interests, institutions and ideas	41
1.4 Conclusion and discussion	43
Chapter 2 Exploring individual perceptions of the EU: what Europeans say and feel?	45
Introduction	45
2.1 The general relevance of the search for discursive patterns	46
2.2 The qualitative study of the European Commission (2001)	47
2.3 In-depth interviews with Dutch citizens (2005-2006)	49
2.4 Conclusion and discussion	53
Chapter 3 Exploring the development of public opinion towards the EU	57
Introduction	57
3.1 The concept of public opinion	57
3.2 Data about public opinion towards the EU: Eurobarometer	58
3.3 General trends in public support for the EU	59
3.4 Conclusion and discussion	63
Chapter 4 Exploring the role of the media in the formation of EU knowledge and EU appreciation	65
Introduction	65
4.1 A general understanding of the interplay of politics, media and publics	65
4.2 Media and the EU	68
4.3 In search of a European public sphere	75
4.4 Contextual factors that influence public opinion formation on the EU	77
4.5 Conclusion and discussion	82

Chapter 5	Method	83
	Introduction	83
5.1	Longitudinal time frame: 1994-2006	84
5.2	Variety of member states	86
5.3	Relevant news media: popular and quality newspapers	87
5.4	Survey data concerning public opinion towards the EU	94
5.5	Research methods	99
5.6	Research design completed	100
PART TWO	APPROACH 1: VOLUMES OF EU NEWS	103
Chapter 6	EU news volumes and public knowledge about the EU	105
	Introduction	105
6.1	Theoretical orientation: the Knowledge Gap theory	106
6.2	Preliminary analysis: development of news volumes and knowledge levels over time	109
6.3	Testing the Knowledge Gap hypothesis	117
6.4	Conclusion and discussion	130
Chapter 7	EU news volume and public appreciation of the EU	133
	Introduction	133
7.1	Theoretical orientation: Zaller and Zajonc	134
7.2	Data, method and measures	138
7.3	Assessing and comparing developments in EU news and EU appreciation	139
7.4	The impact of the volume of EU news on appreciation levels	150
7.5	Conclusion and discussion	158
PART THREE	APPROACH 2: ISSUES IN EU NEWS	163
Chapter 8	EU news issues and public definition of the EU	165
	Introduction	165
8.1	Theoretical orientation: second-level agenda setting	167
8.2	Data, method and measures	169
8.3	Second-level media agenda: prominence of Eurobarometer topics (EU attributes) in European newspapers	174
8.4	Second-level public agenda: readers of the selected newspapers and their definition of the EU	178
8.5	The impact of issue selection by newspapers on the definition of the EU by newspaper readers	182
8.6	Conclusion and discussion	186

Chapter 9	Issues in EU news and public appreciation of the EU	191
	Introduction	191
	9.1 Theoretical orientation: priming and compelling arguments	192
	9.2 Data, method and measures	194
	9.3 Assessing and comparing developments in coverage of EU issues in newspapers and EU appreciation	198
	9.4 The impact of news selections of EU attributes on appreciation levels	208
	9.5 Conclusion and discussion	212
PART FOUR	CONCLUSIONS AND DISCUSSION	217
Chapter 10	Conclusions and discussion	219
	Introduction	219
	10.1 Main findings	220
	10.2 Limitations	232
	10.3 Theoretical implications	234
	10.4 Practical lessons	237
References		241
Samenvatting		255
Acknowledgements		261