

VU Research Portal

Foucault, Levinas and the Ethical Embodied Subject

Lok Wing-Kai, P.

2011

document version

Publisher's PDF, also known as Version of record

Link to publication in VU Research Portal

citation for published version (APA)

Lok Wing-Kai, P. (2011). Foucault, Levinas and the Ethical Embodied Subject.

General rights

Copyright and moral rights for the publications made accessible in the public portal are retained by the authors and/or other copyright owners and it is a condition of accessing publications that users recognise and abide by the legal requirements associated with these rights.

- Users may download and print one copy of any publication from the public portal for the purpose of private study or research.
- You may not further distribute the material or use it for any profit-making activity or commercial gain
- You may freely distribute the URL identifying the publication in the public portal ?

Take down policy

If you believe that this document breaches copyright please contact us providing details, and we will remove access to the work immediately and investigate your claim.

E-mail address:

vuresearchportal.ub@vu.nl

Contents

Acknowledgments	v
Chapter One. Introduction: Foucault, Levinas and the Rebirth of the Ethical Embodied Subject after Modernity	1
A. Postmodern Critique of Dualism and Its Repression of the Body	1
B. The Idea of an Ethical Embodied Subject after Postmodern Critique of Cartesian Dualism	10
C. Foucault and Levinas on the Ethical Embodied Subject	16
Chapter Two. Foucault on the Body and Ethics	22
A. The Late Foucault: Towards an Ethical Understanding of the Embodied Subject	22
B. Foucault on Morality and Ethics	30
1. Morality as Coding	34
2. Morality as Ethics	39
C. Greek Ethics and Stylization of the Ethical Subject	43
1. Ethics of Pleasure	59
2. Ethics of Truth	76
3. Ethics of the Other	97
3.1. Ethics of the Other in Governing	100
3.2. Ethics of the Other in Mentoring	104
D. Conclusion	109
Chapter Three. Levinas on the Body and Ethics	112
A. Levinas: Towards an Ethical Understanding of the Embodied Subject	112
B. Levinas' Critique of Rationalism and Its Repression of Body/Sensation: Hegel, Husserl and Heidegger	115
1. Hegel	118
2. Husserl	121
3. Heidegger	125

C.	Levinas on the Ethical Embodied Subject	129
	1. Levinas on Sensibility in Totality and Infinity	133
	2. Levinas on Sensibility and the Ethical Embodied Subject in Otherwise than Being	143
	2.1. Proximity: Ethical Embodied Relation	146
	2.2. Saying, Bodily Communication and Life Exposure	172
	2.3. The Passive Structure of the Ethical Subject	184
	2.3.1. The Guilt Structure of the Subject	187
	2.3.2 The Traumatic Structure of the Subject	192
D.	Conclusion	197

Chapter Four. Foucault and Levinas on the Ethical Embodied Subjectivity: A Critical Evaluation 201

A.	Foucault and Levinas' Critique of the Disembodiment of Rational Subjectivity	201
B.	Foucault and Levinas on the Ethical Relation of Subject and Other	211
C.	Foucault and Levinas on the Ethical Dimension of Bodily Sensation	232
D.	Foucault and Levinas on Ethical Language and Pedagogy	254
E.	Conclusion	287

Chapter Five. Conclusion: Searching for an Ethical Ground for Body Politics; Foucault and Levinas' Inspiration 290

Samenvatting 306

Bibliography 316

Acknowledgments

First and foremost, I want to thank Dr. Lambert Zuidervaart for his continuous encouragement and incisive advice in the successful completion of this dissertation. He is a good role model to show me how to think and act as a Christian philosopher. I also express my gratitude to Dr. Wouter Goris for his many critical and constructive comments; to Dr. James Olthuis, for his inspiring and passionate teaching on Levinas at the Institute for Christian Studies; to Dr. Robert Gibbs, for his incisive lectures on the late Levinas' ethics at University of Toronto; to Robert Sweetman, for his innovative lectures on "body and spirituality" at the Institute for Christian Studies.

During my study in Toronto, I received help from Scarborough Chinese Alliance Church and Ambassador for Christ. I have to thank Gabriel and Samuel's family for their hospitality and fellowship.

I thank Hong Kong North Point Alliance Church for financial support, and Fellowship of Evangelical Students for their gracious support. I also thank my dad, my mom, my father-in-law and mother-in-law for their support and understanding.

I especially thank my wife, Ally, for her sacrifices, companionship and love. Her life is a wonderful demonstration of "living for the other." I gratefully dedicate this dissertation to her and also to my two lovely kids: Curtis and Kasper. My joyful experience with them deeply shows me the meaning of being an ethical embodied subject.

Finally, I must thank God for grace and inspiration.

Lok Wing Kai, Peter
22 September 2010