Curriculum Vitae

Saverio Caini was born on the 7th of August in Florence, Italy. He graduated in Medicine (in 2002) and specialized in Public Health (in 2006) at the University of Florence. He has worked since then as medical epidemiologist, both in the field of communicable and non-communicable diseases.

He joined the European Programme for Intervention Epidemiology Training (EPIET) led by ECDC in 2010, and graduated in 2012. In 2013, he joined the Global Influenza B Study (GIBS), a research project led at the Netherlands Institute for Health Services Research (NIVEL): this Ph.D. thesis is based on the studies conducted within the GIBS project.
